

The Water Front

Superintendent William Walsh of the Kahului Railroad, is developing what promises in a few years to be a very slightly and attractive little park on the east breakwater, about midway the length of the structure. Here the sand has filled in on the outside forming an area of p acres in extent, and this had been planted with ironwood pine trees. A number of these trees are already growing on the breakwater and doing well.

Thousands of Maui people lined Kahului harbor last Friday and Saturday and watched with greatest interest the maneuvers of the two submarines which came up from Pearl Harbor as an adjunct to the fair, and also for the purpose of recruiting men for the navy. A number of Maui men were given the novel privilege of a ride in the divers, among these being William Walsh, H. K. Duncan and Capt. E. H. Parker. The craft submerged several times outside the harbor and returned to near the Claudine wharf under water.

During their stay here the submarine officers secured a number of recruits.

The Matson liner Manoa came over from Honolulu last Monday morning, departing shortly after noon of the same day. She brought some 300 tons of freight, largely food stuffs (apples, potatoes and other vegetables) which were getting very short here. She took away only some 500 tons of molasses in the way of freight cargo. The Manoa will sail for San Francisco from Honolulu tomorrow.

The shipping board freighter Wallinsford under charter to the Matson Co., arrived in Kahului harbor Tuesday morning and took on 90,000 cases of Maui pineapples.

The big dredger in the harbor is now at work almost directly abreast the Claudine wharf. It will probably be some 6 weeks before the job is finished. The work has been interrupted a number of times by accidents to the machinery. The Kahului Railroad has been instrumental in overcoming some of these troubles in short order.

WINE GRAPE GROWERS SEE SUNSHINE AHEAD

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 21—(Associated Press)—Discovery of a process by which grapes can be converted into a non-intoxicating wine, having the bouquet and taste of the finest wines previously manufactured, has been announced here. The details of the process are being kept secret but it was recently announced that wineries at Cucamonga and Elwanda, California will have a greater output of the new product this year than they had of wine previously manufactured. Wine grapes which have jumped in price almost 75 per cent since last year are being rapidly bought up by the wineries and this, it was believed presages a confidence in the success of the new beverage.

FARMERS IN DROUGHT DISTRICT AS LABORERS

LINCOLN, Nebr., Sept. 21—(Associated Press)—A special train chartered by the farm bureau of Cheyenne county, Nebr., brought 275 farmers to this state from the vicinity of Great Falls, Mont., to help with the Nebraska wheat harvest.

The majority of the men coming were farmers who had suffered the loss of crops through the drought of the past three years. Most of them had families in Montana, and returned there at the end of the harvest season. Many were employed in the cutting, stacking, and shocking of grain, but will be given work as thrashers and then will be employed in fall planting.

FOR SALE

The Fine Kentucky Jack MONITOR

Just landed from the Steamer Manoa, Oct. 13, '19

DESCRIPTION

Monitor is a brown jack about 15 hands high and will weigh, when in good condition about 1000 lbs. He is perfectly sound but a little thin now, probably from not having received any extra treatment on the steamer, but will soon round out as he eats like a "house afire," which I consider a good sign in either a man or animal.

Now, in presenting MONITOR as a Kentucky Jack I don't know but what I may be lying again but will leave my friends to judge of this. If so I will put up no defense but stand convicted. I suppose that according to the strict interpretation of the letter of the law, that a Kentucky Jack means one bred, born and raised in Kentucky which is just what he isn't. His sire and dam were, which I consider an advantage as he was raised in the mild climate of California which is so similar to our own here in Hawaii. This animal was bred by an old Jack Man in California who knows more about Jacks in one minute than any of us would in six months. In describing him to me he said, "I bred this Jack for my own use, never expecting to sell him. I trained him in from colthood and he grew up and ran with the milking cows, loose horses, mares and colts. I have never bred him to a mare in the usual way of using a pit for the mare but allowed him to do his work entirely by himself. He will cover the biggest and tallest 17 hand mare that you can bring around. In running with the flock he doesn't molest mares unless they are in heat and then he does his work in great shape. I have only about a dozen mares of my own which is all I have ever bred to him and have never yet turned a mare out with him that did not prove in foal. I now have about thirty youngsters from him which with a dozen or so I have sold is all he had ever produced. Therefore he has never been overbred.

This Jack possesses one trait that I never knew in a Jack before and that is for an animal of this kind that would lead behind a vehicle. They will generally lead alright if you are on the ground but can seldom be induced to lead like a horse. They will usually pull back but this fellow is just like a horse in this way and you can't start up too quick for him to lighten his halter. If the pace gets too strong he will fly into a run and keep up just like a lively horse."

As to the profits in mule breeding. A little experience came under my notice recently which throws a little light on the subject. I was on a ranch in our vicinity lately where they were breaking a nice young mule about 2½ years old. I asked the manager whether or not he would care to sell the animal. His reply was, "Well, what do you think he is worth?" I said that I thought about $150. He said that he did not know how much would buy him but that $250 cash would not take the mule off the place. This mule was sired by a common native Jack and out of a common native mare, which shows what good one ought to bring."

In offering this Jack for sale it is not without a reason. I should like ever so much to keep him but am afraid that finances will hardly permit it, therefore I shall probably dispose him to the highest bidder inside of 30 days. That is if anyone comes along who appreciates such an animal. He is worth a lot of money but if I can not get it I may have to take less.
